Mountain Lodges of Peru, the family-owned and operated adventure outfitter, has announced the launch of daily departures for its all-inclusive lodge-to-lodge treks to Machu Picchu, offering travelers greater flexibility in planning their journey to the UNESCO World Heritage Site. The company has also introduced two new three-day itineraries tailored for those short on time but eager to experience the beauty and culture of Peru.

For those seeking a less frequented path to Machu Picchu, Mountain Lodges of Peru offers immersive experiences that go beyond the ordinary tourist route. With the newly launched daily departures, travelers can now select the perfect time to embark on these adventures. Whether they are looking for a journey that rejuvenates the soul or a short escape, these treks offer immersion in Peru's landscapes, as well as the opportunity to experience local culture.

For those with limited time but a desire to experience the majesty of the Andes and Peru's culture, Mountain Lodges of Peru has launched two new three-day itineraries:

- Salkantay Lodge Excursion – On this three-day adventure, guests will enjoy guided explorations of Soraypampa, Humantay Lake and the Salkantay Pass, all while staying in the flagship Salkantay Lodge. The excursion also includes an optional trip extension to Machu Picchu, for those wishing to extend their adventure. This itinerary is perfect for adventurers and hikers short on time but eager to explore the landscapes of the Salkantay region in Peru.
- Lamay Lodge Excursion – For those looking to explore the Sacred Valley in a shorter time frame, this three-day adventure offers guided explorations of key Sacred Valley highlights, including Chinchoero, Moray and the Maras Salt Mines. Lamay Lodge serves as a comfortable and scenic home base, allowing travelers to relax and soak in the beauty of the valley. This journey also includes an optional trip extension to Machu Picchu.
